

Do not let this garbage happen. Isn't the US already far enough behind the rest of the world in broadband adoption? If this goes through there will be no reason at all for the big companies to enhance the broadband experience for the end user.